Where you provide this information you should advise Baker Young and / or your advisor when your circumstances have changed as this may influence the types of investments or the suitability of strategies that have been employed on your behalf. Such changes may be triggered by life events such as marriage, divorce, the birth of a child, redundancy, retirement, illness or an accident that may prevent you from working. Any event that has an impact on your life and your financial security should be communicated to your advisor in order that they may be able to assist you to structure your investments suitable to your changed circumstances and ensure that any advice remains appropriate in the future. You should read the warnings contained in the SOA carefully before making any decision based on the personal financial product advice.

Limitations of Research

The research provided about companies, industries and market is only the opinion of specialist analysts, can never be guaranteed, is only valid for a limited time and is subject to market price movements and other events. For example a "buy" recommendation can turn into a "sell" recommendation where the market price of a security increases by a small amount.

The fact that a security is recommended by an analyst does not necessarily mean it is a suitable investment for you and you should consult your advisor before acting on any research report.

costs, certification fees, compliance fees and notification charges and will be advised prior to conducting a transaction on your behalf.

Managed Discretionary Account

Our Managed Discretionary Account Service (MDA Service) is designed for clients who do not have the time and or expertise to manage their investments.

Under our MDA Service, you authorise Baker Young to manage your portfolio in accordance with an agreed Investment Program. Baker Young will make investment decisions on your behalf and report to you quarterly about your investments.

We will hold your assets in your individual name and you remain the legal and beneficial owner of the assets. We do not provide a custodial or depository service in relation to the holding of your assets.

Baker Young offer two types of managed discretionary accounts - Portfolio Management Services and Individually Managed Portfolios. The two services have the same reporting and administrative features although they differ in investment management styles and the fees that are charged.

Before Baker Young can commence providing you with a MDA Service you must enter into a Portfolio Management Agreement. The Agreement sets out the terms on which the MDA Service will be provided, including the obligations and rights of Baker Young and you.

You may give Baker Young specific written instructions about the range of investments in which your portfolio is to be invested. These instructions must be provided in writing to Baker Young and Baker Young will only be obliged to comply with those directions with which it agrees and that agreement is provided in writing to you.

The MDA Service will be accompanied by an Investment Program prepared in accordance with the Corporations Act and will contain certain information about:

- the basis on which the MDA Service is considered suitable for you;
- the nature and scope of the discretions that Baker Young will be authorised and required to exercise;
- the investment strategy that will be applied by Baker Young; and
- warnings about the suitability of the MDA Service, any significant risks associated with the service and the importance of considering any limitations relating to the service which must be considered before signing the Portfolio Management Agreement.

Baker Young will review your Investment Program annually to ensure it continues to be suitable for you.

From time to time certain rights may be attached to investments held in the managed discretionary account, for example voting rights at annual general meetings. Baker Young may exercise those rights without seeking your instructions. Should you wish to instruct Baker Young in relation to the exercise of those rights, you must provide your instructions in writing and Baker Young will only be obliged to comply with those directions with which it agrees and that agreement is provided in writing to you.

The significant risks associated with a managed discretionary account service include:

- Market risk – the risks of changes in the price of assets resulting in the loss of principal, of volatility in the value of the investments held, as well as risk that income from investments is lower than expected. Such risks may materialise due to changing profitability of industries, economic cycles in Australia and internationally, market demand, government activity and other matters that are beyond the control of Baker Young.
- Counterparty risk – risk of loss due to failure of a counterparty to complete the financial transaction. Such parties include brokers, clearing houses and banks.
- Liquidity risk - where particular investments lack sufficient trading volume to easily and quickly purchase or sell, preventing the closure of a position at a fair market value.
- Regulatory risk – changes in the law or regulations, including tax laws or laws permitting MDA services to be provided, affecting returns.
- Currency risk – the assets of an MDA may have exposure to foreign currencies and fluctuations in the exchange rate may have a positive or negative impact in the returns of your portfolio.
- Inflation risk – the rate of inflation may be higher than the return on your investments.
- Asset class risk – each type of financial product attracts particular risks. These will be explained to you by your advisor.
- Operator risk – this is the risk that Baker Young does not comply with its obligations under the portfolio management agreement. Baker Young has extensive and detailed procedures and controls in place to mitigate this risk.

Further details of general investment risks are contained in the “Risks” section below.

This FSG complies with the conditions contained in ASIC Corporations (Managed Discretionary Account Services) Instrument 2016/968 issued by the Australian Securities & Investments Commission relating to managed discretionary accounts.

Fees and Charges

Other Remuneration We May Receive

Commissions and Handling Fees

Baker Young may receive commissions and handling fees from financial institutions and companies with whom you place monies.

Applications, Up-Front and Trail Commissions

If you apply for a new issue of securities we may receive a commission from the relevant issuer. If we act as an underwriter or a sub-underwriter we may also receive fees for acting in that capacity. Generally fees and commissions range between 0% and 6%. All fees will be disclosed in the prospectus or product disclosure statement for the issue or will be disclosed to you by us.

We may also receive a portion of fees earned by third parties on amounts you hold in a cash management account.

For managed investments, fund managers may pay us up front commissions when we invest in managed funds on your behalf. Commissions generally range between 0% and 5.5% on new investments. Ongoing commission is paid by some product providers and generally continues as long as you hold your investment with that issuer. This amount may vary and is typically 0.2% to 0.4% per annum of the value of your holding in the product. A product disclosure statement will be made available to you by the product issuer at the time of investing detailing all fees and commissions payable.

Example: for a transaction with a value of $100,000, where an up front commission is payable at a rate of 3%, the total commission will amount to $3,000.

How Our Advisors are Paid

Our advisors are remunerated through a combination of salaries, commission and bonuses. The exact combination of advisor remuneration is dependent on a number of factors, including the level of fees generated by them. As a general rule our advisors can receive between 30% and 50% of the fees we charge you.

Managerial and other administrative staff may receive a bonus as part of their remuneration. The bonus is entirely at the discretion of the Board.

Referrals

Where you have been referred to Baker Young by a third party such as a financial planner, accountant or other professional, we may pay an introductory fee or a share of fees and commissions in relation to that referral. There will be no additional cost to you.

All introductory fees are negotiated with the third party on a case by case basis and may be up to 50% of our charges. Please refer to the Financial Services Guide or Statement of Advice provided by the relevant third party for more detailed information on payments (if any) payable.

Potential Conflict of Interests

You have the right to be advised of any material interest that Baker Young, your advisor or any of their associates have in financial products. Material interests are those which could be reasonably expected to be capable of influencing the recommendation of a financial product or service to you.

You should be aware that:

- our advisors are remunerated wholly or in part on a commission basis
- your advisor may hold a material interest in the particular security in which you are conducting transactions
- if you have been referred to Baker Young by a third party, that person may receive a share of brokerage or other fees and commissions payable by you and
- Baker Young and or businesses or companies controlled by Baker Young may from time to time provide investment banking, corporate advisory and other financial services to issuers of financial products

Other Associations and Interests

Baker Young is not owned or controlled by a product issuer and acts in its own capacity when recommending or offering financial products to clients, nor are we required by anyone to recommend or offer certain products over any other products to you.

Risks

If they do not do so, you should ask them to explain those risks prior to accepting any recommendation or advice. We will make enquiries to determine your risk profile at the time of opening your account, and this will assist us to provide you with appropriate advice. If you provide any information to us and your personal circumstances, needs and objectives subsequently change, you must immediately inform your advisor of those changes

General Investment Risks

Securities, in common with all other asset classes (eg property or government bonds) can increase or decrease in value over time. The measure of this change in value is often referred to as volatility. The more the asset value varies over time the more volatile the asset is and the more risk involved in investing in the asset. In general, the less volatile an asset is, the less likelihood there is for any significant capital gain or loss from investing in that asset.

Market traded products are generally more volatile than other asset classes, however, markets for other asset classes are not as efficient or transparent as the stock market in terms of the information available to investors and continuously determining and making public the real market value of the particular asset.

The real volatility of those other assets is often not fully appreciated. While it is not feasible to list all possible risks, in general the main risks of investment in market traded securities can be summarised as follows:

Overall Market Risks

The risk of loss by reason of movements in the share market generally. Any number of factors including political, economic, taxation and regulatory change can cause this risk of loss.

Domestic versus International Factors

The vulnerability of the entity in which you invest to international events or market factors. These include movements in exchange rates, changes in trade or tariff policies, and changes in other stock or bond markets.

Sector Specific Factors

These include demand for the product the company produces, commodity prices, the economic cycle of the industry, changes in consumer demand, lifestyle changes and changes in technology.

Stock Specific Factors

These include the company's directors, the strength of management and the significance of any key personnel, the profit history, tangible asset base, debt level and fixed cost structure, litigation, profits or losses on particular contracts, drilling results, competition from within the sector and whether it is exploring for recoverable resources or developing a new product.

Investment Profiles

The capacity of an individual investor to accept investment risk and uncertain returns, depends on several factors, including:

- age
- income and salary
- personal attitudes and experience
- financial responsibilities and commitments
- value and type of existing assets
- investment timeframe eg 1 year or more than 5 years

Different investors require different investment strategies to meet their financial needs and investment objectives. In conjunction with your advisor, you need to determine the investment strategy which best suits you.

Baker Young has developed the following investment strategies to assist you in determining your risk profile:
